In the article the issue of organizing special tutors' training for teaching in the system of distance education is examined. The lack of tutors or their insufficient readiness (professional, psychological and technical) to fulfill tutor's activity seems to be the main obstacle in introducing distance learning in the Russian educational system. Identifying the level of teachers' readiness to fulfill tutor's activity is the first step in the developing stages, topics and problem spheres of their training in modernizing process of the educational system of in Russia.
